

Asha's Adventures

Another week, another costume! I love dressing up so was particularly excited to discover I would pack away my pirate costume from Book Week and get out my farm costume for Funds for Farmers dress up day.

A whopping $798.80 was donated and will be making its way to Drought Angels. I'm told that the idea for this fundraiser came from a parent suggestion on the school Facebook page. I haven't got Facebook because I'm not 13 yet. And, I'm a dog. The idea got passed along to our Student Representative Council and they came up with the idea to have a dress up day with a gold coin donation. Pretty pawsome how parents, students and staff all worked together to support the farming community.

Left: Last week I helped supawwise my Grade 3 – 6 friends complete their On Demand Tests on the computers. I waited on my bed until everyone finished and then enjoyed listening to people read me stories. My teacher friends use On Demand Reading and Maths to help track new learning and future learning. I use On Demand as an oppawtunity to catch up on some sleep.

Below: Mr Thompson and some Grade 5/6 'Techsperts' ran a Minecraft lesson before school for teachers and Labradors. They even showed me how to create my own Asha. Minecraft is good fun and has many features that link to the ICT and maths curriculum. It's a win win!

Above: My pawket money and I visited the book fair. Some of my friends helped me choose a book. We settled on 'Oi Cat' as the cat on the cover looks a little bit like by little cat sister.

Overheard this week on my classroom visits and yard pawtrols...

"Asha, I'm wearing some of your fur!"

"Your head is hot. What are you thinking about?"

"Asha, can you round up cows?"

"I didn't know you could run so fast!"
